Volumne I

Hillside Pioneer Cemetery

compiled by

Joyce Simpson Morrell

copywrite 1988

This book is designed to work with the Hillside Pioneer cemetery index published by the Clatsop County Genealogical Society in March 1988.

Researching that project left me with a great deal of information that would not fit into the index format. This book evolved from that material.

The newspaper microfilm collection at Astoria Public Library is the prime source of this information. In some cases the particular issue that an obituary would have been published in is missing. I was able to find enough information from other news items or other books to compile a short biography. These entries are marked with a *.

I checked the Deed Index Book A at Clatsop County courthouse for records of cemetery lot purchases. This is not proof that the person who purchased the lot is actually buried there.He could have sold or given it to a friend or other family member.

I also went through the card file for Oceanview cemetery looking for removals from "Hillside " or the "old cemetery ". Sometimes I found I had more information than these records, where the card said "Burial Date - unknown."

I have tried to cross reference family connections that were obvious to me . Some surnames, such as Johnson or Erickson, there is not enough information for me to do this, but this may be possible if you are tracking a particular family member and have other clues.

The book is divided into four sections:

Section A.....identified by block and lot
Section B.....names in the sexton records
Section C.....obit identifies this cemetery
Section D.....connect to a family there or died during time Hillside was in use.

James Harvey
14 May 1880
Justice Ben B. Turley, acting coroner, yesterday summoned a jury to hold an inquest on the body of a man found drowned in the river off Scarborough hill and brought up by James Doyle, fisherman who testified to the finding of the body and its being brought to the city by him as found. Charles Turk, being sworn, stated that he recognized the deceased as James Harvey, that on the 28th day of April he went up with him to Megler's cannery and Harvey then engaged to fish for Megler and Co. The jury found that the deceased was proved to be James Harvey, a native of Ireland, aged about 30 years and he came to his death by accidently drowning on or about the 3rd of May. From appearance of the body, it is evident the poor fellow was preparing for a struggle for his life when engulfed in angry waters of the Columbia River on the night of the storm. He had succeeded in removing his heavy boots and one arm was disengaged from his flannel shirt.

Slippen, whose loss was noted in the Astorian of the 23 ult., when he attempted to go from Astoria to Deep River in a small boat. He leaves a family in Washington Territory. The body was found floating, standing erect in the water, the breast, shoulders and head just above the water, his hat still on. The remains were taken in charge by officers at the morgue.

Fortunati Lavavelli
27 April 1880
Yesterday afternoon the body of Fortunati Lavavelli, a boat puller in the employ of Booth & Co., was brought to the undertakers for preparation of burial. Lavavelli went out to fish with his companion as usual on Tuesday night and while taking up the net yesterday morning he suddenly gave out, telling his companion that he could pull no longer. He was told to take his oars out and having called for a drink of water his companion passed it to him. He took a mouthful of the water, but spurted it back out, and fell over a corpse. Coroner B.B. Turley was summoned after the body was brought in and the verdict of the inquest was that he died of apoplexy. Deceased had no relatives here. He was a native of Italy.

Block 1 lot 5
John Anderson
28 September 1880
The body of poor John Anderson, ship carpenter from the Belle of Bath, was found floating in the bay on Sunday. An inquest was held by coroner Franklin and the verdict of the jury was death by accidental drowning. Anderson was missed from the ship on the night of the 19th. It was generally supposed that he had deserted, to jump advance wages in some way, and warrants were issued for his arrest. Little did others suspect the whereabouts of the man they were hunting for, that he had entered a port where no civil process of law could by human hand be served. He was safe in a haven of eternal peace. How quickly sentiment changed when the body was found and it became known that the poor fellow had not deserted his post of duty. There is a moral in this instance,of deep significance to those who are too apt to fix centure (sic) where it is not deserved, consigned to dishonor the purest of character upon the "breath of suspicion." And there is another moral to be drawn from it. When Anderson was last seen his associates were of that nature which were calculated to lead to much conclusion as were formed after his death. He leaves no relatives here we know of. He was a native of Sweden.

13 August 1880
The unfortuate woman known as Mattie Piper was found by Henry Turner, proprietor of the Ore Fine Saloon, yesterday afternoon in the bed of her room over the saloon in an unconscious condition.She died at 6 pm. An inquest was held that indicated Miss Piper had been drinking earlier and said she wanted to drink herself to death, but then said she knew a quicker way. We 're informed by Chief of Police Berry that Mattie received telegram on Wednesday from a Seattle man named Jakey Wirty, with whom she had cohabited for a long time and he had taken up with another woman. She asked another girl in the same house to get her morphia, but was refused. We suppose she got it herself. She had resided in Seattle, W.T. and owned a saloon there.

Emma Burke
10 June 1879
The bodies of Mr Burke and his daughter were taken charge of by the Hiberian Society, under whose auspices the funeral was conducted on Sunday afternoon. Rev. Father Orth preached the funeral sermon . About 3 o'clock last Saturday afternoon the lifeless bodies of Mr John Burke and his daughter Emma, aged about 17 years were found by Mr Abbot in Clatsop under the most shocking and painful circumstances. Mr Abbot was driving along the road in the vicinity when he came to a fallen tree and stopped the team to see a way of getting around it when he found the bodies. The inference is that Mr Burke was chopping down the tree and his daughter was watching the act. When the tree fell it hit a dry stump which fell on Miss Burke. Mr Burke came to her assistance and himself was struck by a falling limb. On Sunday the bodies were brought to Astoria by the steamer General Canby and the funeral was held at the Catholic church. They were buried in the city cemetery. He went east just a few months ago for his daughter and made their home on Clatsop Plains.

Andrew Gill
21 June 1880
We regret to announce that the report in circulation yesterday of the drowning of Andrew Gill and his boat puller proves to be true. Mr. Gill's brother, John, who is also engaged in fishing returned to the city Wednesday night about ten o'clock and states that Andrew and his boat puller Alec Chase put out with their net early Tuesday morning and drifted down on the ebb tide making the mouth of the river at slack water. When then, as is often the case, a heavy swell set in very rapidly and where but a short time before the surface of the water was only moved by a gentle riffle the waves began to break heavily and Mr John Gill says he saw the boat capsizing in the breakers near the swash channel after which his brother and Chase gained the boat and he saw them clinging to the bottom of it. He immediately put to their rescue, but before he could reach them another breaker tossed the boat over and over, after which he saw nothing more of either of the men . John Gill made for Sand Island and remained all day in hopes of securing their bodies, failing which he came to town with the sad news. Both men were much respected in the community. Mr Gill leaves a wife and parents behind who have the sympathy of all in thier bereavement.

6 November 1877
Died at sea on the passage from Honolulu November 6t on board the bark Sierra Nevada, Capt. Wm.H. Koerner aged 33 years.
20 November 1877
The bark Sierra Nevada arrived yesterday from Honolulu in charge of the first officer, Capt Koerner having died eight days out from that port on passage. This will be sad news to the friends of the noble commander, but a source of great satisfaction to the family and all others to know the dread event did not occur until the remains could be buried here. Since Capt. K.'s departure from Astoria he sailed around the globe from San Francisco to China and South America thence to Cuba and New York where his wife, a daughter of Mr Charles Stevens joined him with their only child, which was afterward buried on the passage to Australia. The much loved wife is now a grieving widow, having lost husband and child since her departure from Astoria.
The funeral was held on the 21st at the Congregational church and was well attended.

Died in Astoria Sept 31, of paralysis due to apoplexy of the brain, David Ingalls, age 72 years.Funeral will be from Liberty Hall, Thursday at 2;00. Friends and the Public are invited to be present.
Another pioneer has gone to his rest. Uncle David Ingalls, whose almost continuous and uninterrupted residence in Astoria dates from 1845, died at his residence on Cass street t 9:00 yesterday forenoon, in the 73rd year of his age . He was ill but a short time. As soon as the news spread about the city, flags were displayed at half mast in token of sorrow at the death of one universally respected. The funeral will take place tomorrow aternoon from Liberty Hall. Mr Ingalls was an honored member and steadfast friend of the Pioneer and Historical society of Oregon and has contributed in many ways to the upbuilding of Astoria. For several terms he acted as custodian of city finaces and has filled other places of public trust in the city and county, and has always been regarded as one of the most conscientious and honest men in the country. He spied out Astoria but when few indeed were here and of that number few remain living to behold the wonderful changes of time. He has watched the progress of Astoria in its rise from a wilderness to its present proud position as the second largest city in the Pacific North West. He has witnessed landings here from the days of the canoe, coming in upon the drift along the beach, to the present method of the finest steam ships on any waters, the state of California and the Columbia. He was virtually and emphatically a pioneer and one whose name will be long remembered by all who knew him. Peace to his ashes. He was born in Sullivan, ME. Oct 31 1808, emigrated to Columbia, Ohio in 1836, married in 1838, moved to Iowa in 1840, Oregon in 1845, Astoria in the spring of 1849. His daughter Mary Columbia was the first white child born in Astoria.

"Dad" as he was familiarly known to all, had a noble heart and the relief displayed by him with a liberal hand among the needy will ever be known but we believe his many kindness to his fellow man, his charities to the oppressed are all recorded in the abode of the blest, whether he has taken flight if it be true, that there is a heaven for good souls. Truely will the poor of this community miss him. He leaves a wife and family in this city, to who he has been one of the kindest husbands and most indulgent fathers. The funeral of Henry Sindlinger will take place today at 2:30 pm from Franklin undertakers shop. He had been a resident of this city for the past eight years or more. He came here from Portland and has been known as a quiet inoffensive citizen having few or any associates of any kind, living by himself and pursuing labor as a tinsmith in the employ of Mr. J.G. Meglar, the late Mr. Nickerson, Mr C. E. Jackins and others until a few years past when he carried his own business on his own accounts in the Stolls Building on 4th street. His actions have been so peculiar as to lead many to suppose him to be insane, but diligent in his shop and managed his business,and paid his bills promptly. He was regular in his habits, breakfasting at six, dining at certain hours, retiring promptly, so when he failed to report to his lodging at the hotel where he boarded and not coming for breakfast, the proprietor, Mr Turpin observed the shades drawn in his shop and called sherriff Twilight who investigated. There they found the lifeless body, a clear case of self destruction. He shot himself in the head.(other details) We have no record of his antecedants, indeed he appears to have taken special pains to destroy any evidence of the whereabouts of his family.
